Farmers Expect to Take Over Creamery

The committee that have been canvassing among the New England farmers and those in Canada that have been patrons of the Plymouth Creamery have already received subscriptions of $175,000 and the probability is that plans will soon be perfected to take the property over.

J. W. Davies, the owner, has consented to leave a sizeable interest in the property and serve as one of the trustees for at least a year. This and the retention of the present management of the corporation assures the farmers that the property under a cooperative plan will be well managed and their interests safely guarded. The committee will hold another meeting the last of the week and perfect plans for organization.

The train service is back to normal now and 75 tickets were sold at the Boston and Maine station Monday morning for the mail train south.

I. G. MARSHALL'S FUNERAL HELD AT BAPTIST CHURCH

Deserving Tributes Paid the City Missionary by Local Pastors

The funeral of I. G. Marshall was held in the Union Baptist church Tuesday afternoon and was largely attended by his friends. It was one of the most impressive funeral services ever held in St. Johnsbury.

The city missionary was buried in the cemetery of a Salvation Army officer and the casket was banked with flowers. The service was in charge of Rev. A. S. Woodworth and opened with all repeating the 23d Psalm. The audience then sang, "Never, my God, to Thee," after which Mr. Woodworth paid a brief tribute to Mr. Marshall, referring to the fact that as his life came in contact with both the churches and the people that the St. Johnsbury pastors would participate in the service.

The scriptures were read by Rev. C. H. Morse, the prayer was offered by Rev. Dr. F. A. Moore, after which Miss Catherine Morrison sang "Face to Face with My Saviour."

Rev. F. B. Richards then gave a beautiful and deserved tribute to Mr. Marshall. After a brief biography he referred to his devotion to the Salvation Army, saying that this organization was very dear to him. He said as he lay in the casket in that uniform he was a veritable soldier of the Cross.

"Mr. Marshall had a deep sympathy for the man that was crushed. He helped many a man to his feet and established them. In both the jail work and in the City Mission he strove to bring men to Jesus Christ."

"He was an unusually wise administrator of relief funds and he gave more than material relief. He put into the men he helped materially a new purpose in life and a self-responsibility."

"The work of carrying on the Y. M. C. A. building showed his business skill. He was a shrewd observer of men, persistent in working out what he believed was the best. He was always optimistic and full of good cheer, having the saving grace of humor, even to the last. A good and really great man has been among us for the last five years."

Mr. Woodworth then recited Ella Wheeler Wilcox's poem, "The Beyond," after which Rev. George A. Martin followed with a tribute to Mr. Marshall's faith and his works. He said he touched those that had been sorely tempted and went to places where many would not go. His touch was like the touch of his Lord and Master. He spoke of the beautiful way in which he died and closed by saying, "We are all debtors to him, and we are glad that he has shown us how a Christian should die."

Miss Morrison sang "Abide with Me," after which all repeated the Lord's prayer. Rev. Mr. Woodworth then advanced to the casket and after reciting "Asleep in Jesus" pronounced the benediction.

The bearers were W. B. Eastman, Walter C. Roddick, O. H. Henderson and E. H. Cowles. The entombment was at Mt. Pleasant cemetery and in the spring the body will be placed in the family lot at Berlin, N. H. Those called here from out of town were George and Earl Clinch of Berlin, Mrs. Lizzie Henry Jefferson, Mr. and Mrs. T. H. Keet and daughter of Bernardston, Mass., Mrs. M. W. Cooney of Roxbury, Mass., Alfred Armstrong, Miss Elizabeth McCarthy, George and Walter McCarthy, all of Springfield, Vt.

Man Responsible for Progress

The reasonable man adapts himself to the world; the unreasonable one persists in trying to adapt the world to himself. Therefore, all progress depends on the unreasonable man.—Bernard Shaw.
